GENEALOGICAL NOTES
of
ISAAC GROSS
and his DESCENDANTS.

THE GROSS FAMILY was undoubtedly of French origin and the first record of the name was found in England in Oxfordshire 1273. The name is found in ancient French and English records in the various forms of Cros, Grossus, Groce, Grose, Grosse, Groose, Groosse and Gross, which is the form the latter Gross most generally accepted in America today. While Grosse and Grose is still occasionally found, it is thought the family came with William the Conqueror, as they were not recorded until after the Battle of Hastings. The Arms of the English family is of the Le Gros of the Isles of Guernsey and Jersey.

ISAAC GROSS was born in Boston, Lincolnshire County, England, married Ann_____, and came to America with the Winthrop Expedition in the Arbella, named for Lady Arabella Johnson, wife of Isaac Johnson, Esq., who were passengers on the ship. They arrived in June 1630. Lady Arabella unused to the hardships they encountered died the following December, and her husband died about a month later. This expedition was the most important that had left England for America, consisting of fifteen ships and about one thousand emigrants. Everything necessary for the founding of a permanent colony was carried out by the settlers.

The emigrants included many persons of high character, wealth and learning. They formed a settlement and named the town Boston for their hometown in Lincolnshire Co., England, thus becoming the founders of Boston. Winthrop was made Governor of the colony. Isaac Gross was said to be one of his right-hand men until he became interested in the religious movement which caused many of the colony to be banished at this time, among these Anne Hutchinson and Roger Williams. Isaac left Boston with Wheelwright, a brother of Anne Hutchinson. Wheelwright was banished for his participation in Mrs. Hutchinson's heresies. They went to New Hampshire where they founded the town of Exeter. Later the feeling against the Antinomians having blown over, Isaac returned to Boston where he owned the land on which Faneuil Hall Market now stands.

ISAAC GROSS owned land at Dock Square. He was said to be one of the original thirteen merchants to do business on the waterfront which was at Scollay Square. He took up land and built a homestead on the stream of water that is now Back Bay Fens. It was a grant of land and the stream was then called "Muddy Brook". The first stone house in Boston was owned by Isaac Gross on Cross St., which was later left to Boston, the proceeds to start the first hospital in Boston, possibly this is the Massachusetts General Hospital.

TEN GROSS SISTERS.

In Zion's Herald, Sept. 25, 1918, is an article entitled "The Ten Gross Sisters of Wellfleet." Their picture is on the title page, and all are around 90 years of age. They are also descended from Isaac Gross through Clement, his son.

and India and so obtained direct by boat from Hong Kong imported and distributed throughout China and the rest of the world. Although called "rice wine" it is not really wine.
It is a rice spirit which has been distilled and then mixed with water and some flavoring. It is about 40% alc.
and contains no alcohol above 40%. The rice spirit and water are added to give it a taste and color similar to common rice wine. It is sold in small bottles and is very popular among the Chinese.

NOTES ON TREAT.

GOV. ROBERT TREAT, Commander of the troops in King Phillip's War; leader of the Company that founded Newark, N. J.; Governor of Connecticut 1638 - 1692, at the time its charter was demanded by Gov. Andros in 1686-7, and Deputy Governor in 1679-1683-1692-1702.

Born in Pitminster, England in 1622, and died in 1710, buried in Milford, Ct.

REV. SAMUEL TREAT, son of Gov. Robert Treat, graduated from Harvard College in 1669, and settled at Eastham, Mass., as minister in 1672. He was the eldest of twenty-one children. He married 1st Elizabeth Mayo and had eleven children, 2d widow Estabrook and she had three children. She was the daughter Mr. Willard, pastor of the Old South Church and President of Harvard College.

Samuel Treat was an eccentric, dominated by a "great work", missionary work among the Indians, who grew to love him. While he lay dying they brought their tepees and camped on a hill beside his house, 500 praying warriors, and at least 1000 men, women, and children, stood outside his house and everyone of them had been taught by Samuel with the aid of only native teachers. He died during the GREAT SNOW of 1717, and in Boston and Cambridge the streets were so blockaded that the magistrates of the city were unable to return to their homes after Parson Bratties' funeral, but the desolate road to the burying ground in Eastham was smooth and clear long before the body of Samuel Treat was ready to take its last journey.

Relays of Indian converts bore Samuel to his resting place, he passed for the last time over the grass by the doorstoop which the whirling snow had left bare. They "thrud" triumphal archway that no hero has known since, under an arc of crystal shining in the sun like a fallen rainbow. The snow had drifted and whirled and finally melted and left an archway of crystal in front of the door. Something of the awe of that passing crept into the epitaph. In an age when poems and sordid verse stripped dignity from every grave, chiselled in stone at Eastham are the words

"Here lies the body of the late learned and Reverend Samuel Treat, the pious, faithful pastor of this church, who after a very zealous discharge of his ministry for the space of 45 years and laborious travail for the souls of the Indian warriors fell asleep
in Christ."

Journal 6/22 and the road was still closed.
After getting out about 1 mile I started back again to the east and continued on toward the west end of the bridge. At 10:30 AM, I got out and stopped at the intersection and looked out across the water. At 10:30 AM about 20% sunlight reflected off the water and not add significantly to the value of the project

This is what I have done so far and I am

will be well advised:

1. To get a better understanding of the existing conditions in the area.
2. To do a detailed study of the existing conditions in the area.

3. To identify the existing problems and the existing opportunities and to develop a

THE STORY OF WILLIAM LAWRENCE,

Father of Rachael,
wife of JOHN GROSS 1804.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE, father of Rachael, Orderly Book of William Lawrence, at Castine, Me., 1779-80, communicated by Joseph Williamson, Esq., the Bangor Whig and Courier, of Feb. 10, 1845, has the following obituary:

"In Bucksport, Feb. 3, Mr. William Lawrence, a native of Scotland, age 97. Mr. Lawrence was Orderly Sergeant in the Royal Artillery, and came to this country with the British Army before the rupture with Great Britain.

He was in the skirmishes at Lexington and Concord, and at Bunker Hill, and most of the important battles of the Revolution. He was afterwards stationed at Bagaduce - now Castine - and on the declaration of peace after receiving an honorable discharge, came to this place where he has ever since resided.

His reminiscences of the past and particularly of the thrilling scenes of the Revolution were so remarkably vivid as ever to give to his narrative an interest that is seldom surpassed."

Sargent Lawrence left a journal of the siege of Castine which is reprinted in Wheeler's History and also an Orderly Book.

Both manuscripts were sold by auction lately, the former bringing $14,00 and the latter $11.00
